QUOTE OF THE WEEK

Those who neither crave what belongs to others, nor give away what they have, are to be admonished to consider seriously that the earth, out of which they were taken, is common to all people, and therefore, too brings for nourishment for all in common. . . For when we administer necessities to the needy, we give them what is their own, not what is ours; we pay a debt of justice, rather than do a work of mercy.

—Gregory the Great, The Pastoral Care

A PSALM
ABOUT THE SHORTNESS
OF LIFE

I said
O Lord
let me end the work
You gave to me to do.
So much
must yet be done
before the dark
so little time
remains
before I'm home.
You are eternal
God
a thousand years to You
is but a passing day.
You scatter ages
I hoard my hours.

Please understand
my need for time to do Your will complete my job.
I understand
He said
I do
I only had three years
of days
and I was through.
